

U.S. IS DEFENDED BY FULBRIGHT AT WORLD SESSION

TOKYO, Sept. 30 (AP)—The chairman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee told lawmakers of 49 other nations today that the United States has made some policy mistakes but should be judged on its over-all conduct toward the rest of the world.

Senator William Fulbright, (Dem.), Arkansas, spoke to a session of the Inter-Parliamentary Union punctuated for the second day by Communist blasts at the U-2 spy plane incident and the Israel-Arab dispute.

Fulbright did not reply specifically to the charges. He, along with several other speakers, said it was time for the 370 delegates to "explore those subjects upon which we can agree and not spend all our time on recriminations."

Ferdinand Kozovsky, president of Communist Bulgaria's National Assembly, said the United States "haven't even recognized their fault" in the U-2 spy plane incident. The plane was shot down deep in Russia.

The Arab-Israeli dispute returned to the conference when Mohamed Fouad Galal of the United Arab Republic accused Israel of "atrocities unparalleled in history."
